

Library Books

I've been reading more lately. Here are some opinions.

Tell me I'm wrong, or right, or that you're in love with me forever:
<https://neptune.monster>

DEDICATED TO
[REDACTED] LIBRARY

BLUE NIGHTS

by

JOAN DIDION

▷ Borrowed 20/04/24

▷ Finished 20/04/24

This book helped me understand my mother a little more, I think. It's about the death of her only child Quintana. It's sad, of course. It's worth reading.

Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep?

Philip K. Dick

I've wanted to read this since I was 15! It was great, if a little hard to follow sometimes. The worldbuilding was awesome. I would like to reread it and figure out what I think it's actually about.

How to Read Nonfiction Like a Professor

Thomas C. Foster

The author's enthusiasm for good writing is infectious. I appreciate how clear he is without feeling dumbed-down.

He's a bit of a centrist and it shows, but the book is excellent so I can forgive him.

Do As I Say (nonfiction)
by Sarah Steel

Solidly mediocre. The first half was okay, and then the book fell in a pile of logical fallacies and baffling arguments.

I can't say I would recommend this.

It was interesting to read about Australian cults though.

Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde

R.L. Stevenson

Okay not actually a library book but an op shop is close enough.

I read this when I was a kid and got super spooked. Re-reading, it's still very good. And short!

You should read it too.

